

Our Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) policy strives to transform India into a risk-aware society from being a risk-averse society. We aim to integrate social, environmental and health concerns of the Indian society into Corporation's CSR policy and programmes. Our CSR activities have focused on capacity building, empowerment of communities, inclusive socio-economic growth, environment protection, promotion of green and energy efficient technologies, development of backward regions, and uplifting the marginalized and under-privileged sections of the society.

Nowadays CSR goes beyond charity and requires the company to act beyond its legal obligations. It rests on the ideology of give and take. Companies take resources in the form of raw materials, human resources etc. from the society. By performing the task of CSR activities, the companies are giving something back to the society.

In the changing business environment, doing well (profit) and doing good (caring) are not mutually exclusive but mutually reinforcing. There has been a paradigm shift from the way business was done earlier to how it should be done today. It's no longer a question if companies should engage in CSR, it's now a question of to what extent will they do so, and how they will create and communicate real and meaningful impact.
